Need help in removing business clutter? Here's a possible solution

By ROGER GAVAN

The organization woman . . .

If your home or business looks as though you just moved in and haven't fully unpacked, even though that's far from the truth, you may be a good candidate for the services offered by LM Organizing Solutions.

Using her innate organizing and coaching talents, Lisa Montanaro, a member of the National Association of Professional Organizers, will come to the rescue with a free consultation designed to put any home or business owner on the road to freedom from all that unnecessary clutter.

Her success with hands-on organizing, consulting, coaching, workshops and seminars is geared to helping individuals and managers not only become organized but also to maintain a system of organization that best suits their needs.

"Some people like a little bit of clutter in their lives," said Montanaro. "And that's fine. I tell them that I'm here to help, not to scold."

Although her services are often provided for major clients such as the Law Career Services Office at New York University, Montanaro is perfectly happy offering her expertise to individuals and small businesses.

"At NYU, we needed five dumpsters to get rid of unnecessary files," she said. "I don't believe I would have that same problem in Warwick but I also don't want to be called in when all is lost. It's important to sit down early with a client and discuss goals and solutions."

Being well organized explained Montanaro, is the first step towards a less stressful life and environment.

"It helps you increase productivity and free up more time to reach your goals," she explained. "And that, in turn, allows you to spend more time with your family and to lead a healthier life."

Montanaro, who lives in Warwick with her husband, Sean Hulsebosch, a veterinarian at Oradell Animal Hospital, plans to spend more time developing her business in the local area. She also happens to be a practicing attorney and currently serves as Associate General Council for Pace University.

Her extraordinary resume lists her background as an attorney, educator, mediator, administrator, writer, public speaker and community theater actress. She is proficient in American Sign Language and welcomes the opportunity to work with the hearing impaired.

Anyone interested in a seminar, workshop or free consultation for space planning, time and records management etc. can call LM Organizing Solutions at 988-0183 or visit the firm's Website at www.LMorganizingsolutions.com

Montanaro's company will soon be featured in the fall issue of Balance Magazine. The subject of the article is "How to organize the dorm room." Now, that's a challenge.
